SUBMISSION BY OPTUS INTERNET
IN SUPPORT OF NOTIFICATIONS UNDER SECTION 93
OF THE TRADE PRACTICES ACT 1974

1. Background

Optus Networks Pty Ltd (“Optus Networks”), Optus Internet Pty Limited (“Optus Internet”) and Optus Mobile Pty Ltd (“Optus Mobile”) are wholly owned subsidiaries of SingTel Optus Pty Ltd, and are suppliers of internet, fixed line and mobile products and services. ANZ Banking Group Ltd (“ANZ”) is a supplier of banking & credit card services.

Under a joint marketing initiative, Optus Mobile Internet & Networks and ANZ will provide to consumers the opportunity to purchase certain Optus Broadband access services and fixed line telephony services, and/or mobile services and receive either 5,000 Bonus Points (broadband & telephony), or 5,000 Bonus Points (mobile) and an extra 2,000 Bonus Points (both broadband/telephony & mobile) when the cardholder enters into a minimum 24 month contract with Optus Internet & Networks and/or Mobile, for the supply of either broadband internet & fixed line telephony services and/or mobile services; and makes their initial payment using an eligible ANZ Visa Card.

In addition to this offer, Optus is also offering ANZ First, ANZ Gold, ANZ Low Rate MasterCard and ANZ Access or Progress Save account holders either a $50 Optus Credit (broadband & telephony), or $50 Optus Credit (mobile), or $100 in Optus Credits (both broadband/telephony & mobile) when the account holder enters into a minimum 24 month contract with Optus Internet & Networks and/or Mobile, for the supply of either broadband internet & fixed line telephony services and/or mobile services and makes their initial payment using an eligible ANZ account.

2. Lack of anti-competitive effect

In broad terms the markets which the proposed offer is likely to affect are the markets for the provision of internet services and the market for the provision of mobiles services. Optus Networks, Internet and Optus Mobile wish to enhance their competitive position in their respective markets and have therefore developed initiatives to make their internet broadband access and mobile services attractive to consumers, one such initiative being the above joint marketing initiative with ANZ.

Although the conduct described in Form G may be exclusive dealing within the meaning of section 47(6) of the Act, Optus Networks, Internet and Optus Mobile holds the view that the proposed conduct will have a negligible effect on competition in the market noted above.

In Australia there are a large number of companies which offer both broadband and mobile services, for example, Optus, Telstra, iPrimus and Vodafone. They all compete vigorously for customers. Consequently, there are a very large number of competitive offers available to the public in respect of internet services at any given time. The proposed conduct is one such example of a competitive offer.

The proposed conduct is pro-competitive. The rewards to be provided to customers will help to maintain or increase the level of competition in the already highly competitive market for internet services.

3. Public benefit

In addition, the proposed conduct offers public benefits to the class of consumers to which it relates. For the price of either a 24-month Optus Broadband & Home Phone contract and/or Optus Mobile contract, a substantial number of ANZ customers will receive up to 12,000 rewards points or up to $100 in Optus Credits (for both broadband, fixed telephony and mobile).
