Dear Lauren Roy

I am writing in opposition to the eBay proposed forced usage of Paypal effective 17th June 2008.

As an eBay user I have only ever made payments by Direct Deposit to the Sellers bank account from a bank account of my own.

I am appalled that I should be prevented from paying cash for a purchase & then charged an additional fee for the privilege of using a service I do not require or need.

This is another disgraceful grab at the pockets of consumers & must be stopped.

Alternatively eBay should be forced to provide their technology & systems free to third parties who can then offer consumers an alternative to eBay. Much the same as Telstra is required to open its networks & systems to Optus & other telecommunications carriers.

Sincerely

Simon Probets, Annandale, NSW
