Dear Sirs

Regarding eBays new policy of forcing the use of Paypal for all transactions, it is my opinion that it is a commercial decision rather than concern for their customers. If they suggesting an independant escrow agent that may have given it some credence but this would appear to me to be simply an example of greed. The measures suggested will also penalise small traders and increase prices of the merchandise.

As a private individual using them I resent the parochial way they are trying to impose these measures and I would strongly urge your organisation to scrutinise this matter very stringently.

Yours sincerely ..... Mike Blake
