Dear Sir / Madam,

Please accept my submission opposing eBay International AG's intended restriction of acceptable payment methods.

The move to having Paypal (also owned by eBay) as the ONLY means of payment offered by eBay sellers is monopolistic, un-Australian, anti-choice and akin to a Westfield mall forcing the proprietors of all stores therein to accept only a Westfield credit card as payment.

The "cash on pick up" option is not applicable given that most eBay transactions are conducted on an interstate basis. Those in remote areas will also be placed at a disadvantage having even less choice than others. Having strangers come to your home could also be very dangerous.

There is no benifit to the eBay buyer by allowing this change. There are no benifits for eBay sellers by allowing this change. The only entity that will benifit is eBay.

I offer Paypal as one of many methods of payment to my buyers because I believe they should be afforded just that - a choice.

Sincerely yours, Cheryl Weatherley
