Hello,

As an eBay seller and buyer, I object to eBay's proposed ruling about only allowing payments by Paypal.

As a seller :

I started off selling on eBay by only accepting PayPal.

I then added a bank transfer payment option, and my sales increased, and received higher prices and more bids.

About 40% of my buyers used the bank transfer option, even though there is no Buyer's Protection using this method.

Additionally, my selling fees will increase with the addition of the extra number of Paypal transactions. In my opinion, eBay are being greedy.

eBay are holding seminars around Australia in the next couple of weeks to discuss this issue, and I have registered to be there. <http://pages.ebay.com.au/events/>

A lot of people don't like PayPal, mistrust it, or don't know how to use it. It is a very non-friendly site.

As a buyer, I prefer to pay by bank transfer as I know it will be more profitable for the seller.

Regards,
Margo Courtney
