Hi,

I think eBay's decision to force users to use their Paypal payment system is a disgrace and a grab for fees. They argue that it will be "more safe" than paying with other methods but will not let you use your own merchant services for credit cards which also has plenty of customer protections built in. I also have never had a problem with direct deposit or Australia post money orders in my eight years on eBay. If ebay were truly concerned for their customers safety, they would waive Paypal fees for eBay transactions. It is not about safety... just profit.

Regards Paul Behan,
