

Roy, Lauren

Subject: ebay unfair changes to policy. [SEC=UNCLASSIFIED]
Categories: SEC=UNCLASSIFIED
ACCC Classification: SEC=UNCLASSIFIED

From: [REDACTED]
Sent: Thursday, 1 May 2008 11:24 PM
To: Adjudication
Subject: ebay unfair changes to policy.

EXCLUDED FROM PUBLIC REGISTER

Thank you for reading.

I wish to lodge my formal objection to the changes ebay are making to the payment options customers may use. Forcing people to use only Paypal as a payment method (or cash for pickup only) can only be classed as bullying tactics. The are taking away our freedom of choice, a basic human right.

Aren't there laws about 3rd party forcing and isn't that just what ebay are doing with the policy changes? I believe Paypal is owned by eBay or affiliated with them.

Would Coles, Target, Kmart or Myer be allowed to tell customers that they can only pay for their goods using a 3rd party they owned or were affiliated with... or any other retail outlet for that matter?

Please help make a stand, there are far too many charges rearing their ugly heads in the online world, if we don't stop these changes we're going to end up paying fees to pay our bills.... ooh I think that's already started too. It's time the law caught up with the technology.

Thank you.
Yours truly,
Deb Kelley

Contact details excluded

EXCLUDED FROM PUBLIC REGISTER