Dear Sir / Madam

I wish to object to eBay's application for exemption under the Trade Practices Act 1974. It is clearly anti competitive behavior to restrict all users of eBay to transact with (their subsidiary) 'Paypal'. eBay will undoubtedly come up with many compelling arguments for this change. But if they really wanted to to make this change for the right reasons then other third party eCommerce suppliers would be included which are not owned by eBay. such as 'Paymate' and 'Escrow'. From all sides this is wrong and seems only to benefit eBay's bottom line, not to provide 'safer trading' or 'better service'.

Please reject their application, for the sake of freedom of choice of how we pay and who we pay for eCommerce services.

Yours Sincerely

Dave McLellan
