Re: Proposed eBay changes making Paypal the sole method of accepting payments

I would like to add that prior to this announcement eBay made some changes to their Checkout system that may or may not have been made to have deliberately de-stabilize buyers trust in all the accepted payment methods except Paypal and in particular the direct deposit payment system

These changes included;

1. Omitting the BSB number from the pages containing Direct Deposit Bank Details meaning that buyers could not pay by direct deposit or had to email the seller for this information
This had the effect of undermining the simplicity of Direct Deposit and made people look at other alternatives such as Paypal

I complained and they have since rectified the problem

2. At the same time Ebay also removed the buyers ability to see when a payment has been received by the seller and when an item has been posted.

I see no reason for this however since this information is kept in Paypal it again de-stabilizes all other payment methods except their own.

I really think the ACCC should also look at these actions leading up to the announcement

I again ask that the ACCC insist that eBay put a hold on these changes, pending the outcome of these submissions

Yours Sincerely
Jamie Stretton
