ebay mkaing Paypal the only method of payment should not be allod to happen as this the one and the same company and is just a grab for greater profit. Ebay takes 10% on sales and then Paypal takes 10% on money collected so they are able to double dip on all transaction.

There argument is that it would be safer for both seller and buyer but my recent experience has just proven this is not the case at all.

A claim was made after I had sent items to a buyer that the payment was not made by them This person has confirmed the receipt of the goods but yet Paypal still intends to debit my account

This is a typical case of a grab for money please dont let ut occur
