Subject: eBay insisting Paypal be offered to all customers

Dear Sir

eBay on line auctions are now looking at making it compulsory to offer a method of payment for purchases as "Paypal"

Paypal is owned by eBay and attracts no cost to the buyer but on the other hand costs the seller a % of the sale price. Should a seller not wish payment be made by Paypal their new ruling removes a sellers choice not to accept Paypal.

As a seller we should have the choice of how we want a purchaser to pay for goods purchased and not be forced into accepting Paypal that lines the coffers of the auction site and there bank conglomeration.

Best Regards
