Dear Lauren,

Further to my earlier submission.

I have now understand eBay's main reason for wanting to make PayPal mandatory as the means of payment. As well as earning extra fees from sellers, it course means that buyers will be able to use their credit cards to make payment which in turn is going to mean many more sales.

Good for eBay but maybe not so good for people who don't have the money to spend in the first place?

Quite often I get buyers asking if they can pay a few days or in some cases a couple of weeks later, because they don't have the cash on hand and are waiting for their next pay packet.

Thanks for your time,
Chris Riley (Wordy Chores)
