Hi Lauren,

Please treat my e-mail as a public submission regarding the notification:

Dear ACCC,

I am against this proposal as it forces me as a seller to pay fees using Paypal as opposed to using direct deposits to a bank account. These are just more overheads to deal with as a seller, that may not make future transactions viable.

I have not used Paypal as a seller for over one thousand transactions, using direct deposits to bank accounts without one single issue. I only use Paypal for international transactions.

Buyers on EBay only have to worry about dodgy products, and Paypal cannot protect buyers from this as the funds have already reached the seller.

I believe this initiative by EBay is for profit, not security as EBay would have you believe.

It should be the buyers and sellers choice whether to use Paypal or not. At your own risk, so to speak, just as when you walk into a shop.

Kind regards

Maurice Bassaletti
