Subject: Ebay & Paypal

I have been an Ebay user for over ten years and I am disgusted with them for wanting to monopolise the finance side of online trading. they take enough from us for the cost of putting an item up for auction, then some more from the final sale price, now some more from the payment to the seller.

If this was being done by Microsoft (on American soil) then the courts would be involved immediately.

In my view the move to use paypal only will put off purchasers and sour the ease of use of ebay as a whole.

Surely the exclusion of the banks and other financial transfer companies is anti-competitive?

Make this fair and allow them to do this but not with a company they own. watch them back-pedal on the deal then.

I wont use ebay again if this goes through.
