ATTACHMENT A

SUBMISSION IN RELATION TO APPLICATION BY LIQUOR STAX FOR COLLECTIVE BARGAINING BY LIQUOR RETAILERS.

The Principle.

"A single negotiation process through collective bargaining may offer a more efficient and informed bargaining process, relative to a situation where multiple negotiation processes are necessary" ACCC AMA Collective Bargaining decision, December 2008.

The Application

This application seeks authorisation for Liquor Stax members to collectively bargain with suppliers and for Liquor Stax to bargain with those suppliers on behalf of its members.

The applicant also seeks an interim authorisation in relation to that conduct sought to be authorised as there are on going negotiations with suppliers.

The Applicant

The Applicant is Liquor Stax Australia P/L.

Liquor Stax was established 20 years ago, with about 6 members. It has grown to about 200 members and is still growing. Membership is primarily in NSW.

Liquor Stax is used by liquor retailers to undertake bulk buying, distribution and more recently product development.

Liquor Stax does not handle the products, it simply arranges the buying terms.

Some of the Liquor Stax members are shareholders and share in rebates and discounts and dividends. However the bulk of members are non share holder members and only share in rebates and discounts.

It competes with other buying groups for members and in particular, Local Liquor and Liquor Stop.

Purpose of the Application

The purpose of seeking authorisation for collective negotiation is to give the Liquor Stax members more input and cost effectiveness into the competitive process between buyers and suppliers.

The retail market is dominated by the supermarket majors and hence competition is fierce, small retailers need to band together in buying groups and hence collective bargaining in order to be competitive in the market. Even so they can never meet the power of the supermarket majors but they can seek to bridge the gap.

The system sought to be authorized will foster both economies and scale and economies of aggregated power in the market.

Under the non collective bargaining arrangements the targets of any collective bargaining sought to be authorised present individual liquor retailers with standard form contracts that are weighted in favour of the target. These are proffered on a 'take it or leave it' basis. Authorisation, for collective negotiation, if granted, will result in fairer terms and conditions for the liquor retailers. It also gives them the opportunity to develop their own brands to compete with the supermarket majors and other buying groups.

The targets of the proposed and effectively ongoing collective bargaining conduct are listed in Attachment C. There are currently 60 proposed targets but there may be more, or less, over time. The suppliers vary in size but in all cases it is more efficient to deal with them on a collective basis.

The suppliers cover the following sectors.

- Wine, beer and spirits suppliers-direct suppliers
- Wine, beer and spirit suppliers wholesalers.
- Energy.
- Advertising.
- Poker machines
- Cigarettes
- Soft Drinks
- Insurance
- Confectionary
- Communication services.

Conduct for which Authorisation is sought

The Application seeks authorisation for, collective negotiation. Collective boycott is not contemplated.

The Commission has in the past indicated that the anti-competitive effect of collective negotiation arrangements can be limited in circumstances where:

- the current levels of competition are low;
- the collective negotiation process is voluntary;
- restrictions are placed on the number of suppliers participating in the negotiation process; and
- restrictions are placed on the composition of the bargaining groups.

The collective negotiation process for which Liquor Stax is seeking authorisation is voluntary. Members may elect to opt-out and negotiate individual contracts with the suppliers. Also membership of Liquor Stax itself is voluntary and members move in and out of membership.

The targets.

As indicated earlier, there are about 60. Some are very large operators in the liquor industry, some dominate other industries.

Some such as Metcash, Diageo, Fosters, Independent Distillers, Coca Cola, Tooheys- are major suppliers.

Liquor Stax members would buy mainly from Metcash but the collective bargaining process with others, big and small, allows the members to force competition between Metcash and others.

In all cases collective negotiation has occurred before and is welcomed by the target.

In all cases the public benefits flow.

In all cases the collective bargaining will be voluntary and suppliers can opt to deal direct with Liquor Stax members.

Supply of goods and services

Liquor Stax is seeking authorisation to conduct collective negotiation in relation to the following terms:

• Price of product.

- Terms of supply.
- Settlement discounts;
- Product development.
- Joint advertising and marketing.
- Distribution

Anti-competitive detriment

The counterfactual (the future without authorisation) provides the benchmark against which the anti-competitive detriment and public benefits are assessed.

It is our contention that there is no anti competitive detriment. The conduct if anything is pro competitive. Without buying groups and the consequent collective bargaining process the market would be far less competitive no development of groups who can challenge the dominant players in the industry.

Further it gives suppliers real alternatives to those dominant players.

The individual Liquor Stax members do not generally compete against each other, as they are generally geographically separated from each other. The main competitor are the supermarket majors and members of other buying groups.

On the supplier side Liquor Stax members face large monopoly or oligopoly suppliers and hence collective action is vital.

Further the conduct of Liquor Stax negotiating save individual members substantial transaction costs, even if the buying price was not influenced by the collective negotiation.

The counterfactual is individual negotiation..

Under that scenario, the retailers are faced with either oligopoly, that is, a market characterised by a small number of buyers for its services each of whom has substantial buying power or a monopoly as each supplier has product that each newsagents must have.

Liquor Stax submits that it faces a market structure where suppliers, have substantial power and are able to dictate unfavourable terms and conditions.

If collective negotiation results in a decrease in costs to Liquor Stax members, this would be passed on to consumers due to the structure and dynamics of the market.

However to date collective bargaining has led to benefits to the members. What is has done is to make outcomes more transparent, more cost effective and some changes agreed.

As there is little scope for a lessening of competition in the market, the public benefit that is incumbent upon the applicants to identify need only be very minimal in order to outweigh that anti-competitive detriment.

The potential for anti-competitive detriment is further reduced by the following factors: members can opt out of the negotiations or leave the at any time.

Public benefits

The Commission has in the past accepted that an increase in countervailing as a result of the authorisation of collective negotiation results in public benefits.

In the 2004 Newsagents Associations authorisation the ACCC said

"The Commission concludes that, on the information currently before it, collective negotiations with newspaper and magazine publishers and distributors gives rise to a small level of public benefit in addressing the current bargaining imbalance between newsagents and major publishers/distributors. The Commission considers that collective bargaining arrangements may provide newsagents with greater bargaining power, allowing them more effective input into contractual terms and conditions."

In this instance the applicants claims the following public benefits,

- The promotion of equitable dealings.
- Transaction cost savings- there must be some savings where associations can represent many small businesses.
- Protection from legal challenge- authorisation will often cover conduct that has been occurring for some time. However it was always at risk and targets can use that as a bargaining tactic.
- Collective discussions these must be better than hostility.
- Buying Groups and hence collective action adds to the competition in the retail market, in a market characterized by increased concentration and potentially less competition if no new groupings emerge.

The above cannot easily be quantified in a purist economic sense but public benefits go further than just bean counting. They must include the unquantifiable.

The Commission also recognised that the community generally has an interest in benefits to arising from increased effective input into contracts.

However it is not only an issue of countervailing power but the simple reduction in transaction costs and better information and negotiation skills inherent in a buying group of small businesses. Small businesses who otherwise would be at a disadvantage vis a vis suppliers. This is not just a big versus small issue but also an issue of more effective use of resources and the pooling of resources. Small businesses are outsourcing some roles to the buying group.

Conclusion

Current levels of competition existing between Liquor Stax members are low. Most competition occurs between other buying groups, supermarkets, and licensed convenience stores. Accordingly, the public detriment arising from collective negotiation by is likely to be limited.

Even at the supplier level the collective negotiation does not lead to any detriment.

As regards public benefit -

- The conduct is pro competitive
- The conduct leads to efficiencies
- The conduct is cost effective
- Cost savings will be passed on.
