3 Persons, or classes of persons, affected or likely to be affected by the notified conduct

- (b) Number of those persons:

Not applicable.

4 Public benefit claims

- (a) Arguments in support of notification:
(Refer to direction 7)

The proposed conduct will be of benefit to the public because it will allow retail customers to acquire Dealer Products and/or Promotional Products at a discount or at a lower cost in a retail environment not currently available.

- (b) Facts and evidence relied upon in support of these claims:

The sale of Ipads has a great public benefit in the local area retail market as more competition is needed in this market for customers. Currently there exists no retail outlet selling Ipads.

Dealer Products include mobile phones, cordless phones, fax machines, phone cards, other telecommunications equipment, software, hand held computers, data products and internet starter packs. The products are highly sought after for many consumers, the provision to acquire them will be of great customer benefit and lead to great customer satisfaction.

5 Market definition

Provide a description of the market(s) in which the goods or services described at 2 (a) are supplied or acquired and other affected markets including: significant suppliers and acquirers; substitutes available for the relevant goods or services; any restriction on the supply or acquisition of the relevant goods or services (for example geographic or legal restrictions):

(Refer to direction 8)

A number of markets exist that are relevant to the supply of retail consumer phones and Ipads. Within these markets significant competition exists from large retailers and nimble small retailers. A more competitive retail environment will exist with greater accessibility for competing brands for phones and Ipads.

6 Public detriments

- (a) Detriments to the public resulting or likely to result from the notification, in particular the likely effect of the notified conduct on the prices of the goods or services described at 2 (a) above and the prices of goods or services in other affected markets:

(Refer to direction 9)

There are no public detriments likely to result from the proposed conduct. There is a large amount of competition and retailers selling Ipads both in retail and through the world wide web. This competition is driven by large and small competitive retailers. Better pricing, accessibility and pricing are likely outcomes as a result.

- (b) Facts and evidence relevant to these detriments:

The proposed conduct will not lessen competition because:

- (i) the retail markets for the Dealer Products and Promotional Products are characterised by large numbers of competitors and very intense competition; and
- (ii) Dealer does not have a substantial degree of market power in any relevant market.

The benefits from the proposed conduct will outweigh any possible detriment considered to arise from the proposed conduct.
