- the proposed conduct will lead to increased consumer awareness of the Presto service offered by Foxtel, and the goods offered by Woolworths; and service providers and sellers of electronic goods and services, to offer their customers/subscribers access to similar benefits.

Foxtel submits that, given no anti-competitive effects are likely to result from the proposed conduct, it is not necessary for Foxtel to demonstrate more than the public benefits identified in (a) above.

(Refer to direction 8)

The relevant markets likely to be affected by the proposed conduct include the national markets for the supply of:

- audio-visual content services; and
- electronic goods and services.

Market for the Supply of Audio-Visual Content Services

- Foxtel competes against a significant number of alternative suppliers in the market for audio-visual content services. Those competitors include, but are not limited to:
 - free to air television and “Freeview” broadcasters, including alternative, competing broadcasters’ digital multi-channel and online “catch up” services;
 - other internet protocol subscription or transactional television services, including Fetch TV, Apple TV, iTunes, NetFlix, Stan, Bigpond, Quickflix Play and BBC iPlayer; and
 - other video content services provided via games consoles such as “Xbox Live”.

(Refer to direction 9)

Foxtel considers that no public detriments will result from the proposed conduct, for reasons including, but not limited to the fact that:

- the proposed conduct involves short term, complimentary offers which do not otherwise affect the rights of consumers to acquire the Presto service in return for the payment of Presto's standard subscription fees;
- consumers purchasing electronic goods and services from Woolworths are under no obligation to redeem any complimentary subscription to the Presto service;
- the proposed conduct will increase competition in the relevant markets by encouraging competing participants in those markets to offer equivalent or similar benefits to consumers; and
- the proposed conduct will draw the attention of consumers to the standard pricing charged for the Presto service, thereby assisting consumers to make informed decisions about whether or not to acquire a Presto subscription during or in the period after the Promotional Period.
