Substantially greater than 50.

- (c) Where number of persons stated in item 3 (b) (i) is less than 50, their names and addresses:

Not applicable.

4. Public benefit claims

- (a) Arguments in support of notification:

(Refer to direction 7)

The proposed conduct will be of benefit to the public because it will allow Business & Enterprise customers to acquire Dealer Products and/or Promotional Products at a discount or at a lower cost. It may also lead to better network support and may encourage greater innovation from other telco providers.

- (b) Facts and evidence relied upon in support of these claims:

Dealer Products include mobile phones, phone systems, other telecommunications equipment, software, tablets, hand held computers, data products and internet services. Promotional Products can include vouchers, cinema tickets, electrical good and accessories. These are valuable products to many customer and the ability to acquire them a discount or at a lower cost may be significant to the consumer.

5. Market definition

Provide a description of the market(s) in which the goods or services described at 2 (a) are supplied or acquired and other affected markets including: significant suppliers and acquirers; substitutes available for the relevant goods or services; any restriction on the supply or acquisition of the relevant goods or services (for example geographic or legal restrictions):
(Refer to direction 8)

There are a number of markets that may be relevant including the markets to supply to Consumer, Business & Enterprise customers of phones (fixed & mobile), phone systems and other similar communications devices. These markets are characterised by strong competition. There are several leading retailers of these products as well as many smaller companies.

6. Public detriments

- (a) Detriments to the public resulting or likely to result from the notification, in particular the likely effect of the notified conduct on the prices of the goods or services described at 2 (a) above and the prices of goods or services in other affected markets:
(Refer to direction 9)

There are no public detriments likely to result from the proposed conduct.

- (b) Facts and evidence relevant to these detriments:

Will not lessen competition because the market for Dealer Products and Promotional Products are characterised by large numbers of competitors and very intense competition PLUS the Dealer does not have a substantial degree of market power in any relevant market. The benefits from the proposed conduct will outweigh any possible detriment considered to arise from the proposed conduct.
