

Submission by Elise Vandoorn-22 August 2025

I am excited to see Australia restart solving the soft plastics problem. I think it is still important we focus on the reduce aim as well. I am wondering how companies like hellofresh and dinners, who's soft plastics are likely to get handed in, will be asked to take responsibility and if we risk such companies marking their soft plastics as ineligible in attempts to avoid paying levies.