

Submission by Simone Callaghan Dawson-30 August 2025

The major supermarket chains are making record profits during a cost of living crisis. They cannot be trusted to uphold the best interests of the public or our fragile natural environments. They do not need financial handouts. As part of the soft plastics problem they should not be (once again) trusted with involvement in the solution.